"I know I've only been playing golf for just over three years, but as you can see, I've learned how to win at every level."

"This is a trend that's not going to stop. I'm only going to continue to get better and win more."

Personal Statement

I was first introduced to the game at a very young age. My dad was a professional golfer in the 90's, and to this day still loves the game. However, I was never really interested in golf until 2020 when COVID shut down all team sports so I couldn't play baseball anymore. This led me to entering my first Junior Golf Tournament in June 2020, and I shot a (less than stellar) 111. Although I obviously posted a big number, which you think would've been miserable, it was actually quite the opposite, I was hooked on golf.

Shortly after that tournament I got a job at the local golf course where I worked every Sunday afternoon (without pay) so I could practice there for free all week. I would spend as much time as possible on the course and on the range working on my game. I played in a total of ten Junior Golf Tournaments that year and only broke 100 six times and 90 two times. I didn't win any of the tournaments, but I loved the competition and the quest to keep improving.

With my dad's guidance, I started getting better quicker. Out of the 67* tournaments I've played in, I have won 24 times (36%) and finished in the Top Five 47 times (70%), even breaking my high school's all-time scoring record. Over the last three years of playing golf, I have grown a lot as a person (including literally 4" last summer), and I have definitely grown as a player.

I'm currently working on strengthening my mental approach to playing and competing in golf tournaments. I feel my physical game and shot-making is strong enough (for now), but I know increasing my mental toughness is the next step in unlocking my full potential. With the guidance of experienced college coaches and a good team, along with my hard work and dedication, I believe there's no limit on what the future holds. I know I have what it takes to be an elite player at the highest levels of the game.
